Visitor will be met at the airport and transported to the hotel by an Embassy driver on arrival. Due to security considerations, Embassy personnel utilize official Embassy vehicles for travel to and from the international airport during the hours of 6:00p.m. - 6:00a.m. As the airport is a considerable distance from Georgetown, Post requests the traveler to reimburse the cost of transportation to the embassy at a rate of USD40 each way.

¶4. Travelers are advised to bring a sufficient amount of cash or travelers checks to cover expenses while here. The Embassy will cash personal checks only for a limited amount. The Pegasus Hotel will accept Visa, Master Card, and American Express credit cards. Some restaurants will also accept credit cards, although most businesses do not.

¶5. U. S. passport holders (including diplomatic, official, and service passports) do not require a visa to visit Guyana.

¶6. Threat assessment: Visitors are reminded that crime is a problem in Georgetown, especially after dark, in major business and shopping districts. Pick pocketing and robbery are common in Georgetown. Foreigners may be perceived as wealthy individuals, which may make them targets for robbery, theft, and kidnapping for ransom. In addition, Guyana has suffered from occasional political and labor unrest. Although such demonstrations are not directed at U.S. citizens, we advise visitors to be vigilant to changes in the security situation, maintain a low profile, and be prepared for the unexpected. The Consular information sheet for Guyana can be accessed at www.state.gov or <http://georgetown.usembassy.gov>.
